Ms. Carolyn Grady
YMCA Senior Vice President
420 Fort Duquesne Blvd
Suite 25
Pittsburgh, PA 15222

Dear Ms. Grady:

The Municipality of Penn Hills is the second largest in Allegheny County, second only to the City of Pittsburgh. The Penn Hills YMCA has 950 households registered, which translates to a lot of members in approximately 19,000 households in the community.

The Y's mission for children does not need elaboration. The mission for seniors does. Senior citizens exercise there regularly to the best of their ability, with canes, limps, and camaraderie that needs to be experienced to understand. There are two round tables. Seniors bring bagels, donuts, and Shay always makes coffee. The seniors donated $13,000 to the passed campaign.

No one can put a value on the asset the YMCA is to the Penn Hills community nor can anyone a put number on the negative loss if we lose the Y. Residents and members can all guarantee the loss will be felt and the outcome will be equally negative on individuals as well as the community.

I don't envy your position, but I hope you will take the Chamber's concerns into consideration.

Respectfully,

Ray Luncher
Director

Anywhere Travel

FOR YOUR SAFETY

Taking “Big Brother” to a new level, a previously undisclosed Transportation Safety Administration program that uses undercover air marshals to shadow thousands of U.S. travelers in airports and on planes is causing alarm among travelers and prompting calls for an investigation on Capitol Hill. The existence of the program, dubbed Quiet Skies, was revealed in an investigative report in the Boston Globe and was subsequently confirmed by TSA. While it has apparently been in effect since 2010, the program has come under increasing criticism from within the TSA ranks, according to the newspaper. The article detailed numerous concerns voiced by the air marshals tasked with watching travelers who are placed on a list, due to their travel patterns or other behavior but who are not on any watch list or suspected of any crime. “The program absolutely isn’t intended to surveil ordinary Americans,” the agency said. “Instead, its purpose is to ensure passengers and flight crew are protected during air travel—no different from putting a police officer on a beat where intelligence and information presents the need for increased watch and crime deterrence. The program analyzes information on a passenger’s travel patterns while taking the whole picture into account and adds an additional line of defense to aviation security.”
